“"The Necklace"

I was six years old. It was going to be my first night in the hospital alone. Mom told me she had to leave to go to work. I started crying as she got to the doorway.

She stopped and returned to my bedside. She took off her necklace and looped it through the rail on my bed. She kissed me goodnight and went to work.

Teary-eyed...I held onto the necklace. It was a triple linked gold chain with a small watch attached to it.

I was all alone now, but I was not afraid anymore. The necklace brought a sense of peace to me. Mom was gone but she left a piece of herself with me and it comforted me.

Mom gave gold necklaces away her whole life. Necklaces in the form of a warm smile, a reassuring word, a gentle touch. Necklaces in the form of kindness, humor and wit. Necklaces in the form of real love.

Her final gift to everyone who knows her is a priceless golden necklace of wonderful and cherished memories. A necklace we all can hold onto, and know that even though she is gone, she leaves a little piece of herself behind to comfort us.

We Love You Mom!##imported-begin##Randy Kirian##imported-end##

“ One of my last memories with aunt Mary is when we went to Old Tucson and she went into the jail cell and we took her picture. Those crazy girls wore me down when they came and visited in Tucson. We were all on my backporch (where grandma and aunt Jane would fight over the swing, never aunt Mary she was always the go with the flow) anyways and the crazy cats were singing childhood songs. I don't know about any of you but I can't even remember my childhood songs and I am 28!! It was something to sit back and watch when those three got together and went down memory lane. They would feed off each other and now that part of the stew is gone and to that I am very sad. But I KNOW aunt Mary is in a better place without pain. I got to see a side of all of them that I would have never seen if they would not of came and visited. For that I am eternally grateful. Aunt Mary loved her kids/ family so much (even Van wink wink)That is all she needed and wanted out of life which made her even more amazing because so many people are caught up in the things that don't matter in the end like jobs and money. Aunt Mary knew how to love and she was by far loved back and that is the most important thing in life!!###imported-begin###Jennifer Miller###imported-end##

“ To my dear Family, How I wish I could be with you all at this time, but please be assured that I am with you in heart. Mom was more than a Mom, she was everyone's best friend, and she has left our sights, but not our hearts. My prayers are with you all.
