“ Rosie was a dedicated nursing assistant who provided genuine loving care to the residents she cared for. Rosie had the special touch it takes to care for those with dementia, and it showed by the connections she made with them. She was frequently called to come in on her days off, she always agreed to come in. She could always be counted on to lend a helping hand. It was a pleasure to have worked with her. She was small in stature, but mighty. Rosie will be remembered for her selflessness and contagious laughter.
