“ Todd was definitely a very professional, hard working, and exceptionally gifted & talented toolmaker, that commanded the very highest levels of respect, at every level of the organization.

My own father (My personal superhero) was a very talented tool & die maker, for a world famous tool & die company. He left this earth in 2004.

In my mind, Todd was perhaps even MORE talented and MORE respected by myself & others, than even my father was. Varied in talent areas, but very, very gifted in their chosen professions.

In 29 years of Manufacturing engineering, Todd was clearly the best toolmaker, I have ever worked with, in my professional career, and I honestly feel compelled to state that, without reservation.

He was, and always will be remembered in that regard, by me, personally.

Todd was a great man, and I'll cherish my memories of him forever.

Hopefully, He and my dad will now meet, have very long conversations, and share some kewl, professional, personal, and even goofy stories with each other. (that will probably be about me).

I BELIEVE they'll both REALLY enjoy that!

I'm Going to really miss you, Todd.

At least "Some" of your vast knowledges, talents, and style, have been shared with others, and Will continue. But we've all lost a Very Good Man!

Rest very well now, Mr. Goble, & Goble family, peers, fellow workers, & friends.
